Occupy Humana

STEPHEN KAMELGARN, MD

2011 may be known as the year where the public finally stood up and screamed, ala Network (1976): “I’m mad as Hell, and I’m not gonna take it anymore!”

First, we witnessed the awakenings of the masses in Egypt, Tunisia, Libya, Syria and Yemen. This “Arab Spring” was then followed by our own homegrown protests, of what is now known as “The Occupy” movement. It started as Occupy Wall Street in Zuccoti Park, protesting Wall Street’s destruction of the world’s economy and the criminal malfeasance of “the 1%,” and has spread to virtually every major city in the US and many other cities throughout the world. As the movement has moved and grown, it has morphed into a variety of forms, and is taking on a local flavor in the individual cities. Occupy Denver, for example, is also protesting treatment of immigrants. Even up in our little corner of paradise we have Occupy Eureka and Occupy Arcata. Not much I admit, but a presence in front of the courthouse or Arcata city hall, nonetheless.

While the mainstream press has downplayed or dismissed the protests as “a student lark,” or “they have no message,” the protests are having an effect. In October alone, more than 600,000 Americans moved their bank accounts into Credit Unions. This is more account transfers than occurred in all of 2010! (US News & World Report Nov. 2, 2011 www.usnews.com/news/articles/2011/11/02/americans-closing-bank-accounts-moving-money-to-credit-unions.) The nature of the national conversation has changed, and The Occupy’s motto of, “We are the 99%,” is beginning to resonate all through society. Yes, the Occupy Movement is definitely having an effect.

I think it’s time that we, as physicians, jump on this bandwagon. It’s time for us to give a huge resounding NO to the insurance industry. For years, I’ve been screaming about what the insurance gorgon has done to ours and our patients’ lives. Obamacare has done nothing, and I fully suspect that by the magic 2014 date, when most of the reforms are supposed to kick in, what little remain of the minuscule reforms that were actually enacted, way back in 2010, will have been gutted by the Supreme Court and/or the pampered mandarins in Congress.

On Dec. 6, 2011, Michael Moore (of Sicko and Fahrenheit 9/11 fame) posted an article on Truthout that had a recipe for the Occupy movement to survive the coming winter. He listed five activities we can do to keep the movement alive. Here’s Number 5:

5. Occupy the Insurance Man. It's time to not only stand up for the 50 million without health insurance but to also issue a single, simple demand: The elimination of for-profit, privately-controlled health insurance companies. It is nothing short of barbaric to allow businesses to make a profit off people when they get sick. We don't allow anyone to make a profit when we need the fire department or the police. Until recently we would never allow a company to make a profit by operating in a public school. The same should be true for when you need to see a doctor or stay in the hospital. So I say it's long overdue for us to go and Occupy Humana, United Health, Cigna and even the supposed "nonprofit" Blue Crosses. An action on their lawns, in their lobbies, or at the for-profit hospitals -- this is what is needed.

www.truth-out.org Dec. 6, 2011

Who, better than we physicians, knows how malignant these bastards are. They siphon off 30% of their clients’ premiums to pay for bloated executive salaries and perks, and to pay off investors and stockholders. And how does this all get paid for: by exorbitant premiums, high co-pays and deductibles on the income end, and restrictive formularies, denials, discounted reimbursements, obfuscation, delays and exemptions on the outlay side of the equation. These “responses to the market” netted them $12.2 billion in profits in 2009.

And what do we get? Just try to advocate for your patients. While all the insurance companies maintain glitzy, come-hither web sites, just try to contact them via the internet. You can’t. They don’t list an e-mail address, and if we attempt personal communication, we’re forced to navigate some incredibly arcane telephone menu system. Once we (or, more likely, one of your staff members) spend 10 minutes punching menu choices, she is then put on hold for an hour and a half. These clowns are having parties down in the Caribbean while our patients are debating between paying their extortionate premiums or their rent, and we physicians are scheduling patient appointments for every seven minutes, just so we can meet overhead; let alone make a decent living.

Back in 2009 (“Let’s kill all the Insurance Execs,” The Bulletin April 2009), I wrote that I felt the insurance industry was operating illegally by practicing medicine without a license, or was committing malpractice by not performing good faith exams. I publicly called for the California State Attorney General’s office to investigate and criminally prosecute the most egregious offenders. Toward that end I sent both the State Insurance Commissioner and the Attorney General dozens of charts and letters of protest documenting insurance abuses.

Both offices refused to give me the time of day. I spoke to the CMA who promised to follow-up, but I haven’t heard a thing. I’ve thought of all kinds of things I’d like to do.

I’ve actually entertained the notion of hiring several Eastern European Computer Geeks to hack the computer systems of the insurance companies in such a manner that they approve 100% of the charges that come through, no questions asked. And they won’t even know they’ve been hacked! Only when they come up sinking below their bottom line, will the grossly overpaid CEOs and CFOs realize they lost their gravy train. While this always remains an attractive notion, something is sure to go wrong, and I have absolutely NO desire to spend my retirement years in some Federal Prison.

It is time for us to ally with the rest of The Occupy movement. Does it make sense for us to sit-in, in their foyers, parks and parking lots? It does, but many people in The Occupy movement are already ready to do that. Besides, we have patients to take care of, and the insurance headquarters are far away. We need to perform some action that is unique to us physicians; something only we can do in concert with the others in the movement.

What we can do is unify, and CANCEL all of our insurance contracts. We then bill the insurance companies as “out of network providers,” and let them know, in no uncertain terms, that we won’t accept their measly discounted rates, restrictive formularies and onerous approval rules.

We North Coast physicians may be in the best position to do this: we’re a small, self-contained community, that is far from other centers. There’s no way they can force their subscribers to brave the winter passes to Redding for a well-child check, or maneuver through a rockslide closed 101 to Santa Rosa for a pre-natal visit. In other words, we’re the only game in town. If the insurance companies cannot put together a panel of “network” physicians, they’re going to have to deal with us on our terms. If we, as a community, hang together and negotiate as a unit to advocate for both us and our patients, we just might get somewhere. We must demand that these bloated parasites give back to the people who pay their salaries, and provide a decent level of service and reimbursement. And if it gets us sued by the state for anti-trust violations I say, in the words of our former Commander and Thief: “Bring ‘em on.!” §

Come enjoy an evening of laughter and fun with your colleagues.....

2012 Directories

PENNY E. FIGAS

Executive Director

The Medical Society's Editorial and Publications Committee is very proud of our outstanding Physician Membership / Resource Directory that we publish each year. Although it isn't as fancy as some of our larger component societies, it certainly is one of the best (if not "the" best), in terms of having local physician and resource information "at your fingertips." There is a lot of work that goes into this publication to make it as accurate as possible with the resource information that you and your staff need on a regular basis.

We have gone to "press" on the 2012 issue, and it should be on your desks by the end of January. We'll attempt to hand-deliver as many as possible in an effort to make sure it gets to you in a timely manner. There are, however, a few offices where the staff are so excited to get it that we are concerned that it isn't making it to our members as intended. (See information below about ordering additional copies for staff).

Did you know that in addition to an extensive Member Section, we publish a listing of all the Non-Members in the back of the book, to assure you have access to that data as well. So if you're looking for one of your colleagues who is not in the member section, be sure to check the non-member list--and encourage them to become a member! If you still can't find who you are looking for, please give us a call, as the physician may be a regular "Locums" and we track this information separately.

Quite frequently we receive calls from you or your staff for information that is published in the Directory, so I want to highlight some of the contents, and encourage you to share this with your staff. This publication is to make things easier for you, so when you don't find what you are looking for PLEASE let us know so it can be considered for future publications. Other resource lists i.e. list of provider NPI Numbers is also available upon request of our members and/or your Office Manager.

We encourage you to become familiar with the contents of the Directory, which includes:

All Office Practices (with the exception of non-member "solo") are included in the OFFICE PRACTICE section: highlighting office practice name, address, phone, fax, website, office manager and member physician(s) in the practice.

SPECIALTIES INDEX is a list of members under each self-designated specialty. An "*" designates board certification (ABMS or AOA only) in that specialty. Each practice is also accompanied by a letter: indicating what local community their primary practice location is.

HOSPITAL LISTING was expanded this year to include direct phone numbers (or extensions) for the: Physician Dictation line, Emergency Room, Health Information Management, Lab, OR and Radiology. This resource lists not only the Hospital contact information, but also direct lines for the Hospital Administrators, Medical Staff Coordinators and a list of officers of the Medical Staff.

PHARMACY LISTING includes phone numbers, fax numbers and hours of operation for each of our local pharmacies.

Do you need to know where one of the local ADVANCED PRACTICE CLINICIANS is working? We rely on our members advising us who the APC's are that are working with them so we can track that through our database.

We have an outstanding USEFUL NUMBERS section that is expanded each year based on the input we receive from our members. We try to group these resources, i.e. Ambulance/Medical Transport; agencies that have separate offices for Humboldt and Del Norte; DME Suppliers; various departments within Public Health; Laboratories; Physical Therapy; Component Societies in Northern California; etc. PLEASE let us know if you run across any incorrect information.

And much, much more..... CMA Medical Legal Index; Humboldt Health Alert; North Coast Lawmakers; local Specialty Clinics; Workers Comp Resources; etc. Be sure to review the Table of Contents.

Our members receive their first copy at no charge and can order additional copies for their Office Managers and staff at the member price of $20.00 for 1st copy and $35.00 for additional copies. However, in order to get the member price, it has to be ordered by the member physician directly or the Office Manager at request of member physician. The member price only applies, specifically, to our member's direct staff. Any of the non-members and their staff must pay the full price of $50.00.

It is through advertising revenue (see back inside cover) and sales of the publication that the Medical Society is able to provide this valuable benefit. PLEASE help us by encouraging the vendors with whom you work to advertise in the Directory (or the North Coast Physician) and/or purchase a copy.

We hope the Physician Membership Resource Directory continues to be a valuable tool for you and your staff! As always, your input on future issues is always welcome. §
